BONAPARTE'S MARRIAGE.

Some account of Berthier's mission, translated from the Altona Mercury of 20th of March.

VIENNA, March 10.

The prince Neufchatel, with a numerous train of French nobility and officers in his suite, was met on the frontiers by the Austrian field marshal prince Esterhazi, &c.—On the 4th instant they arrived at the capital. On the afternoon of the 5th, prince Neufchatel was received at the gates of the city by numerous cavalry and infantry—being placed in the imperial coach of state, attended by the marshal of the palace count Sehafgotch, and followed by his suit, was escorted by the Austrian cavalry, with bands of music, through extended lines of infantry, amidst continued popular shouting to the imperial palace. The day was remarkably fine, the streets, windows and house tops crowded by those anxious to view the grand and brilliant parade. Having reached the residence, prince N. was attended into the grand saloon of the palace, where the emperor was seated on the throne, with the commanders of the Austrian and Hungarian guards on the right and left, the emperor's adjutant at a short distance. As prince N. entered, the emperor raised his hat, desiring him to remain covered. The prince delivered a speech; to which the emperor replied: when the former introduced severally all the noblemen and officers of his suite: then he and they, having bowed each three times before the throne, withdrew, accompanied and cheered by the bands as before. During the interview the French prince and suite remained near the imperial throne, while the Austrian nobility even of highest rank were stationed at a distance and in the back ground. To this succeeded prince N's formal audiences of the empress and archdukes in their palaces. The evening concluded with a grand concert and ball, at which attended prince N. his suite and all the court, except the princes Maria Louisa.

On 5th—Great dinner at the empress's; in the evening a masquerade, distinguished by taste and splendor. On a magnificent temple, supported by transparent columns, whose drapery represented the national colors of France and Austria, were exhibited the letters L. and N. (Louisa and Napoleon). The whole court attended, not excepting the empress, whose health is not yet returned.

On the 7th, grand dinner at prince Neufchatel's—in the evening, splendid party at prince Trantmaunsdorf's.

On the 8th same ceremony and movements as on the 5th [which the lovers of French democracy can re-peruse above, without our again transcribing it—Translator.] Prince N. declared in form the object of his mission, viz. to ask the hand of the archduchess Maria Louisa for the emperor his master. The sovereign, as the head of the imperial and archducal house, having answered, the princess appeared, conducted by the grand chamberlain, accompanied by her governor and governess—when, having declared her age, (in her 19th year) she consented to the proposition. Prince Neufchatel then presented her with a letter and the portrait, from his sovereign. The governess suspended the portrait on the bosom of the princess. After which prince N. had an audience of the empress—thence proceeded to the apartments prepared by the archduke Charles for this occasion; where he made known the request of his master that prince Charles would represent him in the marriage ceremony, for which purpose he handed the proclamation. The Austrian grand master of ceremonies and prince Charles' chamberlain, then conducted prince Neufchatel to his lodgings.

There appears some hope that after Bonaparte's marriage, he will restore the provinces taken from Austria, and that he will permit Louis to reign in Holland. If so, we doubt conditionally, that is, if Austria and Holland will act with him against England and commerce.

Translated from the extra Gazette of Cadiz.

MADRID, March 26.

Not a day passes but our government receives new proofs of the holy fire of insurrection. As the official accounts received yesterday are very extensive, we shall form an extract for the satisfaction of the public.

The inhabitants of Arzena and its vicinity, knowing the bad treatment the different towns experienced from the French, and that they were escorting by the Carril, to St. Olalla, a certain number of waggons with ammunition, and other effects proceeding from Seville, assembled a body of men to the number of five hundred, with the intention of intercepting this convoy, but did not succeed as it had passed by before their arrival. Four hundred men however, at the destined point having been informed that a French party was to follow them, they determined to wait for them and beat them, which they did with such facility that out of 76 men of the enemy only 14 survived. Among the number of killed is a colonel of dragoons, his wife and one captain; the arms, ammunition and all they had with them, as also the military chest, containing some important papers remained in the possession of the brave Spaniards.

The enemy wishing to avenge the affront and having been repulsed by the inhabitants of Zalamea, attempted to attack us anew, and to that effect re-united the forces they had at Castaya, St. Bartonomi, Aymonte, Auciva, Trigueros, Valvetdero, and in other places. The result was, they were completely routed, with great loss, which according to the accounts received, exceeded one hundred men leaving in our possession, a number of muskets, knapsacks, and other accoutrements.

By the last news received from Gibraltar, it is known that although the inhabitants of Marabella had not determined to resist the enemy, yet nevertheless on the arrival at that place of the Serranos, they spiked the guns of the castle and carried off the money and plate, which was already prepared to be sent to Malaga, were so far encouraged that they are all armed, and have united themselves to the insurrection of Siera——By the same conveyance we are informed of the departure of the intrusive Joseph from Malaga the 13th of the present month, and that the town of Osuna is entirely free of the enemy.

Several divisions of the patriots have set out from Ronda for Arcos. Grasalema and Marbella, entered the city after the enemy had fled on the 2d, one of which on his way to Malaga, has beaten a party of Frenchmen of one hundred men, who have all fallen victims, sacrificed to the valor of the patriots. They proceeded to Malaga, and the French retreated without waiting their arrival.

Another party going to Xerez, has beaten in Morena 79 Frenchmen, of which nine were killed and the rest taken prisoners.

The 21st instant there were no Frenchmen at Huelva; but in Mogder they had about four hundred cavalry and three hundred infantry, who were to depart the same day. The troops of Portugal had reunited by land, not being able to effect it by sea, owing to bad weather, notwithstanding all the vessels were embargoed to convey from Mirtola to Ayamonte.

From the island of Leon we have received the following news.

The general of division, Zenon, on the flank, and Marquis de la Romana in front, attacked the French army, composed of the divisions commanded by marshals and generals Ney, Mortier, Merle, &c. consisting of from sixteen to twenty thousand men:—They were beaten and driven as far as Xeres de los Caballeros, with much slaughter, which town a division of four thousand of our troops had entered in pursuit of the enemy.

His excellency Don Gabriel de Nendizabel, general in chief of the army of the left, in passing the Tagus, and on his entry into Estramadura, addressed his troops in the following terms:

Soldiers of the army of the left!

You have crossed the Tagus! a new field is open to your glory, fly to the brilliant efforts of your heroic value. Sons of all the provinces which compose the Spanish monarchy, and to the place where the dangers and the defence of your fellow citizens call you. The Frenchmen admired as they experienced the rigour of your arms, in the mountains of Biscay; flying precipately before you in Gallicia, leaving that country of freedom covered with their dead: the everlasting laurels which deck your brows acquired in the fields of Castile, have distinguished you with the glorious title of sons deserving the esteem and thanks of their country. At present the spacious theatre of Estremadura, is anxiously waiting for you! The ferocious enemy attempts to invade her: our presence alone will render his efforts abortive. Here you will unite yourselves with your brave brethren and the other companions of your arms, who have immortalized themselves in the same contest in the fields of La Mancha and Andalusia. Loyal Castilians, valliant Gallicians, brave Asturians, warriors of all the provinces, unite your efforts with those illustrious patriots, and your country ever grateful and liberated, will reward your heroism, your constancy and the sacrifices you have made her; and your name will be immortalized in the annals of posterity.

Head Quarters, at Alberquerque, 26th of Feb. 1810.

Your Fellow-Soldier,
GABRIEL H. MENDIZABEL.

STOCKHOLM, March 6.

From Gottenberg we learn that the herring fishery will the ensuing season be unusually productive.

PARIS, March 11.

The criminal tribunal of the department of the Seine, continues to persecute and punish all Frenchmen who have acted with the Austrians against France since 1804, agreeably to the imperial decree of 6th April 1809.

Official information has been forwarded to the king of England conjointly by France and Austria, accompanied, as we are told, by some new proposals for peace.

ALTONA, March 19.

We learn from France that a closer consolidation of the confederative states belonging to the French system is in agitation. It is also said that an alliance between France, Austria and Sweden is about to be promulgated; and letters from Stockholm of 6th March, announce the departure of col. Von Engelbrechten to receive possession of Pomerania, which province the French will evacuate.

They write from Holland that the castle of Loo (on the frontiers) is to be ready on the 15th April to receive the king of Holland; who is expected at Amsterdam early in that month. The Dutch are again taught to hope for peace.

VIENNA, March 10.

The court Gazette contains the following. The prince Neufchatel arrived on the 4th, on his mission relative to the marriage of her imperial highness Maria Louisa to the French emperor.

FRANKFORT, March 12.

On the night of the 10th her M. queen of Westphalia arrived here; and proceeded at three o'clock next morning on her way to Paris, the king of Westphalia, followed through this day.

This day was published and posted up the proclamation of the king of Westphalia to the Hanoverians.

ALTONA, March 20.

The St. Petersburg Court Gazette of 2d of March contains the following:—

From Grodno, Feb. 13.

"We expect the speedy return of our troops from Gallicia through Poland, to winter in the interior of the empire. We are surprised to find that this movement on the frontiers is considered (by foreign printers) as an advance towards the Niemen. We would be rejoiced to find those printers as anxious for peace in their publications as Russia is in fact.

AMSTERDAM, March 13.

Couriers daily arrive from our king.—The fate of our country is yet unknown. The painful suspense and apprehension have produced a depreciation in the funds.

FROM THE MEIN, March 14.

The Grand Duchy of Frankfort is to be increased by the annexation of Hannau and The Bavarian army is to be reduced to the peace establishment.

The 20th of this month is to be rendered important in the history of the confederation; when the new acquisitions of the respective princes will be made known.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 25.

The Porte has determined to raise immediately a new army of 150,000 men, also to reinforce the army of the grand vizier; as information is received of the advance of the Russians again towards Silistria & Grigergiewo.

STRASSBURG, March 12.

The princess Maria Louisa of Austria, has arrived at this place on her way to Paris. The papers are filled with the intended ceremonies of the coronation.

An Altona paper of the 23d instant says, that a letter from France, dated the 8th, which mentions, that the armistice between the Russians and Turks has not yet taken place. They assure us, that a note from the French minister has been handed to the Porte, to induce him to join the continental system, the success of which is expected. In the mean time, it is affirmed, that France has offered her mediation between Russia and the Turks.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

TUESDAY, MAY 1.

...Non-Intercourse ! ! ! —— Mr. Hawes, I ...d you a comment on the "Restrictive" ...tem of government. It appears by the ...ement below that ONE MILLON TWO ...UNDRED AND TWELVE THOUS-...ND, EIGHT HUNDRED AND TWEN-... FOUR bushels of Wheat were received ...London, NEARLY ALL FROM FRANCE, ...ring the short period noted, and while it ...s unlawful for US to carry it.

...tract of a letter, dated Liverpool, Feb. 2.

"Statement of the quantity of foreign wheat imported into London from 18th Dec. 1809, to 29th Jan. 1810.

From 11th to to 18th Dec.	9,230 qrs
18th Dec. to 8th Jan.	25,070
8th Jan. to 15th Jan.	38,710
15th to 22d	39,713
22d to 29th	38,880
	151,603 qrs

From this statement you will be able to remark the great demand there is for the article of Wheat, and this vast import convinces us more and more of the great deficiency of last year's harvest in this country, more especially, as notwithstanding the amount of supplies in so short a space the price has not given way to more than 3d to 4d per qr. We are inclined to think from the small profit which is realized by said importation that consequently the prices in France, (from which country the greater part of the quantity noted has been received) must be comparatively high, and therefore this being the case, from the present state of politics as far as regards France, it would be bad policy on the part of Bonaparte to allow the price of grain to rise still higher, which certainly will turn out so, should the immense quantities continue to arrive from that country. We quote the price of wheat from 35s 6d to 16s per 70bl; flour 57 a 58 per bbl, and when we consider that these have been nearly the prices for December, and are so for the present month, when our markets are receiving supplies from our own farmers, more than any other periods of the year, we are of opinion, that this and other circumstances, which we have related, gives us much reason to think, that prices in the ensuing spring will be such, as to afford the shipper a handsome profit, and would therefore recommend the above named articles to your attention."

LATE FROM ENGLAND.

The ship Golconda, Captain Crocker, 31 days from Liverpool, arrived off Sandy-Hook yesterday morning, and in the evening the passengers came up in a pilot boat. By this vessel the editors of the New-York Gazette have received London papers to the 23d of March. It will be seen by the following extracts, that every thing was going on well between the British government and this country. Price of Stocks at London, 3 per cent. consols 68 1-2 5-8—consols 68 7-8.

LONDON, March 20.

The American frigate John Adams is under orders to set sail to-morrow from Cowes for the United States. It is generally believed among the American merchants in England, that she carries out for approval and ratification, if they be deemed satisfactory, the provisional terms of adjustment, supposed to be concluded between Mr. Pinkney and marquis Wellesley. The vessel charged with these despatches will, it is said, first proceed to Havre, where the best informed merchants suppose, that she will take Gen. Armstrong on board, in order to convey him home.

Accounts have been received from Holland, which states that Bonaparte had issued a decree, ordering all the American property in France to be confiscated and sold, and the produce to be vested in the Imperial Funds, until the nature of the relations between England and the U. States should be ascertained. The letters add, that Gen. Armstrong had presented a strong remonstrance against the violent measure, in which he declared, that he could enter into no treaty, nor hold any intercourse with the French government until the property confiscated was unconditionally restored; and concluded by demanding passports. If this intelligence should be confirmed, we may consider a rupture between America and France as unavoidable.

March 22.

The American frigate the John Adams, does not sail from Cowes till to-morrow. The departure of this vessel has been delayed, in order that she might carry over to the American government the result of the negociations between the Marquis Wellesley and Mr. Pinkney. We shall now have an opportunity of ascertaining the real intentions of the American government, beyond the possibility of a doubt. The John Adams will carry out to America intelligence of the new outrages committed by Bonaparte against the property of American subjects wherever it can be found —and also the amicable arrangement settled between the marquis Wellesley and Mr. Pinkney.——If the American government reject the lattter, and still manifest a disposition to submit to every injury and every insult that Bonaparte may choose to heap upon them, all attempt at negociation on our part will be useless.—— We trust, however, that the last act of violence which Bonaparte has thought proper to adopt, will open the eyes of those men in America who are even most attached to France, and convince them that no concessions on their part, short of absolute submission, will satisfy the tyrant of France, and they must make up their mind either to be his vassals or his enemies. It is reported that the John Adams is to call at a French port, in order to carry general Armstrong to America. This we doubt. Whatever disposition Mr. Armstrong may have to wish to leave France, he will, in all probability, wait for despatches from his government before he resolves upon so decisive a step.

A letter from Messrs. John Bulkley and son, dated Lisbon Feb. 22, 1810 to Mr. Paine, merchant of Boston, says, "A very favorable change having lately taken place in our market, for the sale of grain & flour we think it may be of service to you to be acquainted thereof. By the annexed price current you will please observe, the present quotations, and here beg to add that there is every appearance of a further augmentation: The large supplies required for the British and Portuguse army, about eighty or ninety thousand men together with the numerous reinforcements expected from England: are grounds on which we form our opinion; and the exportation of grain from the Levant being now prohibited, we must chiefly depend on your continent for our supplies."

Prices—Corn, 540 to 560 reas per alquil; flour, super. 12 dollars per bbl; beef 12; pork 14; pitch 9; tar 5200 reas: turpentine 560; rice 4890; codfish 3600; bees wax 360; pipe staves 90 dolls; hhd. 45; barrel 35.

Congress of the United States.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MONDAY, April 30.

[Taken for the Alexandria Daily Gazette.]

The speaker stated a request of Mr. M. Carey to lay on the tables of the members, a paper entitled disquisitions on the subject of the renewal of the charter of the bank of the United States. The request was refused.

Mr. Montgomery offered the following resolution which was adopted by the house:

Resolved, That the secretary of the treasury be, and he is hereby directed to lay before this house at the next session of congress a general statement of the annual receipts and expenditures of the U. States, from the commencement of the government to the end of the year 1809, including the sums obtained on loan in Holland and which having been applied in Europe do not appear among the receipts and expenditures of the treasury; and shewing the several sums respectively paid each year on account of the principal of the public debt, of the interest on the same, and of each other general branch of expenditure.

A communication from the post master-general was received; giving a statement made in obedience to a resolution of this house offered by Mr. Dana. Ordered to be printed.

Mr. Pitkin offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the President of the U. States be requested to cause to be laid before this house, copies of any communications made on the part of the United States, in answer to an official note of the 22d of August, 1809, from the French minister to general Armstrong, and of any communications that may have been made to our minister at London, on the part of the British government, in answer to any note presented by him, in pursuance of instructions given on the 23d of November, 1809. Also, of the answers, which may have been given to any propositions or overtures made on the part of the United States to the governments of Great Britain and France, respecting any of the orders and decrees affecting neutral commerce, and which have not heretofore been communicated to congress, and do not require secrecy.

The question on this resolution was taken and carried: Ayes 52, noes 39. Mr. Pitkin and Mr. M'Bryde were appointed to wait on the president and present the resolution.

The bill to allow the privilege of the library of congress to the agent of the committee of the same, was read a third time and passed: ayes 53, noes 32.

The bill further to amend the census act was read a third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Lewis the unfinished business of Saturday was laid on the table.

The bill authorising the erection of certain light houses was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading this day.

The house proceeded to the consideration of the amendments of the senate to the commercial intercourse bill, (commonly called Macon's bill, No. 2.)
